Many years ago (WWII), I visited my sister, Mrs. Pearl Rubin, in San Antonio, Texas; reading the San Antonio Light, I learned many Army recruits came to San Antonio for their basic training, but knew nothing of their civilian life. I suggested to Pearl that they open a school for the purpose of teaching these men and women upholstery, since Pearl and her sick husband were experts in the art. They got approval for an upholstery college for approved military personnel, who learned and were shipped to different bases around the country. Her children did not want the business, so Pearl sold it to a reliable person and she did volunteer work. She is now deceased.
