

War Era Story Project 2012

Submitted by: Kathy Lehman

Current home town: Dayton, Ohio

Age: 82

I think I was about a 16- or 17-year-old young girl when the school passed out names and addresses of WWII boys asking girls to write to them. I took two names and sent my first letter to each. Two letters came back, just so overjoyed that I had written to them. I don't think my letters could have been that well-written or exciting, but I did write again, and again they were so happy to hear from me again that one said he wanted to marry me. I again answered both letters, but never heard from either one again. I just thought as a young teenager, they figured I was not a good letter writer, now I wonder what ever happened to them, did they get shipped out or what? I always wonder!?